

WHIPSAWED THE TALENT

Alia's Victory at Washington Park a Hard Favor for the Faney.

GREATEST THAT WAS EVER TROTTED

Such another race will not be seen for many a day. It was full of splendid competition and chicaneery.

The harness racing talent got the nearest favor it had ever received when Alia trotted Fixley and won the $15,000 Columbian Exposition stakes at Washington Park.

Such another race will not be seen for many a day. It was full of splendid competition and chicaneery. The talent which closely followed Alia was not far behind.

The talent sought protection by the usual dubious ways. First the owner offered $25,000 to drop the fifth heat Friday afternoon.

BRONSON HOWARD IN OMAHA

Interview with the Distinguished Dramatist on Several Interesting Subjects.

VIEWS ON PLAYS, PLAYERS AND PUBLIC

Inspired by "Aristocracy" by Observations of International Social Follies—Pauper Nobility and Ambitious Heiresses.

Bronson Howard of New York, a dramatist whose popularity knows no boundary lines, arrived in Omaha yesterday and registered at the Plymouth.

In conversation with a Bee representative last evening, Mr. Howard expressed his delight at the wonders and evident prosperity of the west, and Omaha especially. It is his first visit to this city for many years.

"I have just arrived from the west," said the eminent New York dramatist, "and I am a singular coincidence. I reached Omaha on the eve of the presentation of the play 'Aristocracy,' which I wrote last year. I am not traveling with the company, however, and shall proceed eastward tomorrow morning.

"I have written a number of plays, but you will notice that I never write more than one play in two or three years. I believe that is the best plan for dramatists to adopt, because too much indulgence in the preparation of dramas has a tendency to cause a playwright to lose his grip. I regard 'Aristocracy' as one of my best efforts. It is devoted to international social follies, and is a mirror of the social follies of the two continents.

"I was prompted to write this play by an observation of society fads in Europe and America and my love for the welfare of my country. It is a regrettable fact that too many people are to be seen in Europe, Europe trades her paper prices for American wealth. Many American girls with large moneyed parents purchase these titled foreigners, who care little or nothing for the women they wed under such circumstances. Europe has long maintained a sense of aristocracy that will eventually be overthrown. Not only American women, but American men seek to ape the fads of the aristocracy of Europe. After carefully studying the subject, I have written this play. I saw an opportunity to present an object lesson for the people of this country, and that is what I intend to do.

"Plays with Meat in Them." "I find that the American theater-goers have tired of farce comedies and the like. C. H. Hoyt, being possessed of great versatility in the matter of writing, has written a number of plays which are a real boon to the home life, and have proved a most remarkable exception. You will notice, however, that his latest plays have more of a plot to them. The people want plays with ideas—more specifically, plays that possess an interesting subject matter, and which are of great purity. There is a great demand for purely American plays with a moral.

"I was formally engaged in the newspaper business and have since then been engaged in life over the prairie. Thompson possessed the advantage of having the animal he bred fresh and under perfect control, while the pursuer was able to do so only by spurts and the irregularity of manure and half finished cattle. This he was sufficiently near to render the chase one of great excitement and danger, for from the furious creature's intelligence displayed at first, it was gradually reduced to a state of stupidity as the animal or man who fell before him.

"So, without sparing whip or spur, Thompson flew over the ground with the mad horse only a few dozen yards in front of him. The general feeling of the existence of large cracks in the earth, gaping for water, which were often quite wide enough to admit of the horse and breaking a limb, when he would be thrown into the air, and the animal would come down with a crash, and the pursuer would be in a perilous position. The mad horse would often follow a gully or a ditch, and the pursuer would be in a perilous position. The mad horse would often follow a gully or a ditch, and the pursuer would be in a perilous position.

"I was in the Hawaiian islands when the inter-Island occurred. There was a general feeling of excitement, not only among the American residents on the island, but among the natives as well. The natives viewed the matter in a stolid manner and did not even seem to notice the excitement. The Hawaiian flag was raised, after the stars and stripes were lowered by Commissioner Houghton. The natives are generally ignorant, especially in the sugar and rice industries. The natives are opposed to annexation by a large majority. "Other nations covet the islands because the latter constitute the cross roads of the world, and are a most important station for prompt and serious consideration. The annexation for this reason. It would greatly strengthen American naval interests. The population of Hawaii, including the natives, is composed largely of Americans, Portuguese, Chinese, Japanese, German, and other nationalities, and is a very mixed and inefficient class of people, who are never educated up to American civilization and would make a very undesirable addition to our citizenry. The natives are generally ignorant, especially in the sugar and rice industries. The natives are opposed to annexation by a large majority. "The prevalence of such a mixture of foreigners on the islands presents an interesting racial problem for the future."

SPAIN'S FLOODED DISTRICTS

Continued Storms and Rains Have Accumulated the Districts.

HOMELESS AND STARVING THOUSANDS

Millions Seem in the Devastated Localities—High Waters Prevent Immediate Relief and Render the Work in that Direction Futile.

Madrid, Sept. 17.—The distress in the flooded districts of New Castile continues and is greater than anticipated. Fresh storms and continued downpours of rain have delayed the departure of the relief trains destined for the villages which have suffered. Some have been entirely isolated for days and starvation is starting the inhabitants in the face. This is also the case with parties of villagers who have been driven from their homes by the floods and who have sought refuge on neighboring hills. Some of them were lucky enough to take away sufficient food to last several days. Others occupied with their lives only and have been living on anything they could pick up.

The suffering in the neighborhood of Villacanas is said to be terrible and the tales told of the horrors witnessed about the fatal caves where hundreds of the inhabitants starved to death, is almost beyond description. Some of the recent cases of starvation stricken inhabitants of Villa-Cana had sought refuge on the hills and with corpses of men, women and children.

At Romeral 200 houses are flooded and many others are partly submerged. Business in the flooded districts is entirely suspended and will remain for some time to come. Large forces of troops have been sent to the distressed neighborhoods with provisions and porton corps.

Great damage has been done in other parts of the peninsula. The peasants are making frantic appeals to the government for help, which would be readily sent if it were possible. The distress in the flooded districts is entirely suspended and will remain for some time to come. Large forces of troops have been sent to the distressed neighborhoods with provisions and porton corps.
